

TEEN CHALLENGE

ADULT CENTERS OF TEXAS, INC

From the desk of our Education Director...

“Good afternoon, GED class! Who’s ready to learn something?”

I wonder if all teachers are that excited about teaching all the time. On many days, I am. Not everyday, but most. And I would like to think that my students are as well. While there are many teaching moments, and I teach a few different classes, I would like to take this time to talk to you about our GED program. It started as a personal interest between a volunteer, who has since become a staff member, and her mother and their desire to offer another avenue for our students to better their lives. In the spring of 2014, however, the potential for having a real class on our property began to be discussed with earnest. Prayer and planning was devoted to this new endeavour. The school was going to have to provide a teacher; a hurdle overcome by my college degree. Scheduling conflicts were overcome with a little purposeful planning. Education materials were donated. The program is mostly online, so computers were needed; someone, through prayer, donated so we could buy 3 new laptops to get us started. Another laptop was found not being used, and was donated immediately. Suddenly, we had a program. Now, we needed students. That first year, we had 5 ladies and 3 men that needed their GED. And we were off and running.

Self-directed computer time

We are ending our sixth year in conjunction with Midland College offering an opportunity to obtain a GED. Every year has its little struggles, issues, and frustrations. This year was no different. Many students, like in many other adult education classes, leave the class for whatever issues arise. Despite the plague and people leaving our program, we will be adding 6 confirmed and 2 potential graduates to our alumni:

14-15 Graduates

Science experiment of liquid density

14-15: Hannah M., Daniel M.
 15-16: Tatyana J.
 16-17: Benjamin R., Andrew L.
 17-18: Sarina D.V., Jaime G., Kile G.,
 Nicholas K., Jase S.

18-19: Austin B., Jerek M., Calen M., Gloria R.

19-20: Madison A., Aaron B., DalMacio B., Brycie B., James D., Logan G.

While the GED preparation is online, we have two different classes during the GED scheduled time. There is a self-directed computer class, in which the students work on areas of education that they have gaps. Most haven't been in school in years; for a few it had been decades. So, gaps in their understanding in various subjects is inevitable. The computer program that we use is designed to get you into learning the things you don't know, or know well, as fast as possible and not bog you down with stuff you already know. The other class takes place in a more traditional classroom setting where the students receive big concept teachings in each of the 4 subjects: language arts, mathematics, history, and science. GED is not just book work and screen-time. Lord knows I like to do the occasional odd thing, so I try to incorporate a few fun days through out the year; Seuss day, physics day, Poe and candy, beat the odds, and anything else that may strike my fancy. Teaching needs to be ready to use whatever works. Some students had been using a different form of education prep programs to get their education before they joined us, so I incorporated them into their personal learning time.

As the years have gone by, we have been blessed by those that cherish education. From individual and private financial donations to personal involvement via materials and time, we want to take advantage of every opportunity to help our students better themselves for the future. We place a very high importance on education. The only thing more important is our pursuit of God. We have had more than a few debates and discussions about an individual's spiritual growth, concerns about family, prayer times, and mini-Bible studies. The GED time is not a separate endeavour, but an integral part of a Teen Challenge student becoming the man/woman of God that they were designed to be. The greater purpose of both programs is to learn how to find the answers; whether in the fields of education, job field, or the fields ready to be harvested. I will always encourage those to think for themselves as long as it is from God's point of view.
